BOSTON, MA – September 6, 2007 – Popular Mac-only game publisher, Red Marble Games, today announced the release of Fairy Treasure, an addicting breakout-style game ported from the PC platform to the Mac. Fairy Treasure takes players on an adventure against an evil, greedy troll that has stolen great treasure from the Kingdom of Trollandia and has carefully guarded it in his cave ever since. As players work to recapture the treasure, they travel along the Fairy River on a magic raft, and in more than 120 exciting levels, struggle against hags, goblins and other evil wills that guard the river paths. "Fairy Treasure is an exceedingly popular game on the PC platform," said Mark Batten, founder and CEO of Red Marble Games. "We're proud to be the publisher that's bringing such a compelling title to Mac game players around the world."

Features of Fairy Treasure include:

- Interesting magic fairytale theme with a consistently compelling story,
- Over 120 levels of brick-busting adventure and fun,
- Gorgeous theme-inspired graphics and music throughout,
- New, fun bricks and amazing power-ups never before seen,
- Three challenging difficulty levels,
- Automatically saves player progress, profiles, and high score.

Priced at only $19.95 (USD), Fairy Treasure is a Universal Mac OS X application that requires Mac OS X 10.3.9 or better, and is available for immediate download directly from Red Marble Games' website at www.redmarblegames.com/fairytreasure.html.

About Red Marble Games:

Founded in 2002 by Mark Batten, renowned game publisher Red Marble Games came about with the idea of bringing great independent games, originally developed for the Windows platform, over to the Mac. In one form or another, Mac games have always been a passion of Batten's, and by focusing on porting and publishing rather than on original development, Red Marble Games is able to make a broader array of high quality titles available for Mac people to enjoy.
