Version 4.2 is a maintenance release for improved performance and increased functionality. There are several bug fixes in version 4.2, including improvements to the events and project/task editors. Task Timer is an easy-to-use project management tool that allows users to track time spent on an unlimited number of projects and tasks.

Lenexa, Kansas - BKeeney Software, Inc. is introducing major changes to its time management software. Task Timer version 4.2 is a maintenance release for improved performance and increased functionality. Estimate double fields have been added to projects and tasks, and actual versus estimate performance can be optionally graphed on the timer window. Users now have the ability to force the display to decimal hours via preference settings. The events editor columns can now be sorted and when reloaded, it will remember the sort. Task Timer 4.2 also features a new summary report with daily and monthly subtotals.

There are several bug fixes in version 4.2, including improvements to the events and project/task editors. For Mac OS X users, waking up from sleep mode and starting a timer immediately will no longer cause an error, and for Windows users, the data export window now has a menu enabled. Additional bug fix items can be found in the help file.

Task Timer is an easy-to-use project management tool that allows users to track time spent on an unlimited number of projects and tasks. Users can start and stop time via a status menu that is available even when Task Timer is not the active application. Task Timer generates reports using a specified data range, and users can easily view weekly, monthly and yearly totals in unique chart settings. Task Timer conveniently synchronizes data on each user's computer with a database server, so it even tracks time when users are away from the office. It even allows multiple users to synchronize to a centralized database server. Task Timer is the perfect time-management tool and may be purchased online for $24.95 (USD). A free 14-day trial is also available online.
