Madrid, Spain - PlayToddlers is pleased to announce the release of Sweet Home Stories 1.0, a cozy and fully interactive play house game where children can join a family of 6 lovely characters and role play, to create their own stories in a household with 7 different rooms. It has been specifically designed to be played safely by children from 2 years of age, but detailed enough to captivate and amuse children up to 8 years.

In Sweet Home Stories, every room is an exploring adventure itself, filled with hundreds of interactive objects and dozens of activities to do: hanging laundry, mopping floors, or making breakfast with this adorable family. This game, shares some gameplay mechanics with PlayToddlers' Happy Daycare Stories, which was the first playhouse game in the AppStore developed in a fully interactive 3D environment.

According to the studio, the game has been developed to foster kids' imagination and creativity while learning and reinforcing daily routines and improving their language skills through story creation. As children grow, they are exposed to new experiences and their imaginations expand. In an effort to better understand their worlds, children pretend play, or role play. Sweet Home Stories provides a safe environment to play house, where pieces are impossible to lose and never break, letting their imagination run wild.

Every room in this household has been conceived to allow different activities and role plays to encourage their natural imagination. A living room where to watch TV and relax, a fully equipped kitchen where they will prepare delicious meals, bedrooms for kids and their parents, a bathroom where kids can try new hair colors and styles for their characters and a private backyard where they can hang laundry or grow veggies.

As Sebastio Lopes, Co-Founder and Lead Designer at PlayToddlers, explains "We developed this game because we wanted to provide a safe and detailed environment where children can make their own day to day stories in a family household with their imagination. We just provide the tools, and they create their adventure."
