Vilnius, Lithuania - Jumsoft today is proud to announce the release and immediate availability of Money 5.0, a new version of their highly popular finance management app for macOS. This time, Money gets macOS and iOS releases simultaneously, bringing both macOS and iOS version numbers to 5.0. This marks the fact that the apps were developed simultaneously and work together better than ever. With the new releases, Jumsoft have checked all of the customer request checkboxes and brought a completely revamped user interface, 64-bit architecture, and a variety of other new and improved features to ensure Money stays relevant for generations of devices and operating systems to come.

"The previous version of Money for Mac, which has been on the market for more than 6 years, set a very high bar for what the new Money should be. We have spent countless days aggregating our customers' feedback to determine the direction the new Money should take. The conclusions brought us back to the drawing-board, because our first goal was to reinvent the way of using all of the features by removing the steep learning curve, and reducing the amount of actions needed to complete every task. At this point I cannot even begin to count, how many ideas were brought to the table and scrapped, until we finally came up with the perfect UI." - explained Algirdas Unguvaitis, CEO of Jumsoft. "We have completely redesigned and streamlined every aspect of the UI and added features to achieve the ease-of-use we were aiming for. Now the interface stays consistent between features, so using Money to its fullest potential becomes easy and natural."

The new minimalist UI is the core around which all of the new and improved Money features revolve. The app adopts a common workflow needed to complete various tasks, so Money effectively reduces and even eliminates the learning curve, which is common across different areas of other financial trackers. The new Money still carries powerful support of multiple account types, multiple currencies with automatic rate updates. The macOS version also brings improved smart accounts and smart data import from a variety of popular file formats (QIF, QFX, OFX, CSV, MT940). The new interface allows for greatly enhanced and super-easy to use budgeting, transaction scheduling, investment tracking, and many more features, which have now become much more visual and informative than before.
