Barcelona, Spain - To get in the spirit of International Book Day, iClassics Productions has decided to slash the price of its immersive reading apps from $4.99 to only $0.99. The iClassics Collection has a total of 9 immersive reading apps, meaning that the whole collection is available for under $10 this weekend. Bookworms can get in the bookish mood this weekend and on International Book Day thanks to the wealth of unique reading material iClassics Productions offers.

Although specializing in the horror, terror, and macabre genres, the iClassics Collection is, in fact, a diverse and dynamic buffet of literary gems, with a range of the greatest authors from the western literary canon. H.P. Lovecraft, Edgar Allan Poe, Charles Dickens, Oscar Wilde, Arthur Conan Doyle, Washington Irving, and Jack London are the giants that iClassics Productions decided to take on when they sought to produce the iClassics Collection.

As opposed to many interactive books one can find while perusing the iTunes App Store, the iClassics Collection is truly artistic, with highly artistic illustration paying homage to the works of the greats through their beauty and mystery. And it doesn't stop at illustration, alone. Animation, FX, interactivity, and music all come together to create a wholly creative and unique experience.

Get the entire iClassics Collection for under $10, and find yourself at the forefront of a literary revolution. Show it to your friends on International Book Day, brag about having it, spread the word, and be part of something entirely fresh and innovative. If you do, you'll doubtlessly be left craving more, and more.

Word is about town that the iClassics Collection is far from being complete, with many exciting projects and creations stocked up in the pipeline!
