

TV Yapp coming soon to iOS - Talk about TV

Published on 05/23/17

Hirshmania! LLC today is proud to announce the up-and-coming release of TV Yapp, their new social network/chat app developed exclusively for iOS. TV Yapp was developed specifically for people who love talking about TV but hate spoilers. You can easily track the shows you and your friends are watching and the episodes seen. Users will also be able to create chat groups by inviting friends who have seen the episode they wish to discuss.

Plainview, New York - Hirshmania! LLC today is proud to announce the up-and-coming release of TV Yapp(TM), their new social network/chat app developed exclusively for iOS. TV Yapp was developed specifically for people who love talking about TV but hate spoilers.

- * Track the shows you and your friends are watching and the episodes seen.
- * Create chat groups by inviting friends who have seen the episode you wish to discuss.
- * Include friends who are watching the show but are behind you. They won't receive any messages until they catch up. Once they do, they can join the discussion and not miss out on what was already said.
- * Keep the same group together and discuss the next episode with a push of a button. No need to wait for others to watch or worry about spoiling anything. Just spill your thoughts and your friends will only see them when they're ready.
- * Search for people nearby who watch the same shows you do. Maybe meet that special someone who's down to re-watch all 121 episodes of Lost with you.

To learn more, please visit TV Yapp's official website. You may sign up to be alerted when the app is released. In the meantime, you will receive a special Game of Thrones season 7 preview by stand-up comic and Game of Thrones super-fan Zachary Schiff.
