

Virtual TimeClock '09 Release 3 Adds Notes to Employee Timecards

Published on 10/29/09

Redcort Software today announces Virtual TimeClock '09 Release 3, their industry leading time and attendance software for Apple Macintosh and Microsoft Windows computers. Virtual TimeClock is available in both Pro and Network Editions. The new Virtual TimeClock software release brings the ability to add notes to employee timecards, full Snow Leopard and Windows 7 compatibility, and more than two dozen software enhancements.

Fresno, California - Virtual TimeClock '09 Release 3 was announced today by Redcort Software, publisher of employee time clock software for PC and Mac computers. Virtual TimeClock '09 Release 3 is available in both Pro and Network Editions. The new Virtual TimeClock software release brings the ability to add notes to employee timecards, full Snow Leopard and Windows 7 compatibility, and more than two dozen software enhancements.

"Adding notes to timecard entries has been a highly requested feature from our Virtual TimeClock users," said Keith DeLong, Redcort Software founder and CEO. "Our users want timecard notes to report mileage, tips, bonuses, commissions, jobs or project tracking notes. They've also requested the notes feature to allow employees to explain a late arrival or early departure right when the event occurs."

Virtual TimeClock Release 3 is fully compatible with the new Microsoft Windows 7 release. With the September 1 announcement of support for Apple's OS X 10.6 Snow Leopard, Virtual TimeClock software now fully supports the new operating systems released by Apple and Microsoft this past quarter. The user experience has been enhanced in Virtual TimeClock '09 Release 3 with over two dozen improvements to the software. A complete list of features and changes for Release 3 is available at the Redcort Software web site.
