Coeur d'Alene, Idaho - DEVONtechnologies today releases DEVONthink 2.11.3 for Mac. The popular smart document and information manager receives support for MultiMarkdown 6 and better bookmark handling. Email import is faster and more compatible to Apple Mail on macOS Mojave, the overall performance has been enhanced, and some bugs have been fixed. The update for all three editions is free and recommended for all users.

DEVONthink is DEVONtechnologies' document and information management solution for the Mac.
It supports a large variety of file formats and stores them in a database enhanced by artificial intelligence (AI). Many document formats can be directly viewed and edited, PDFs annotated. DEVONnote is DEVONthink's little sibling with a reduced feature set targeted at users with notetaking-centric needs.

Sophisticated organization tools, AI-based techniques that handle even the largest collections, and numerous integration options make DEVONthink the work environment of choice for researchers, lawyers, and educators. With its fast, reliable, and secure synchronization users keep their data available on all their Macs. DEVONthink To Go for iPad and iPhone completes the DEVONthink ecosystem.

* Keep your data together in one place
* Scan your paper, archive your email
* Let artificial intelligence help you file your data
* Sync your data to all your devices, fast and secure
* Share your data with anyone, whether they use Mac or PC

New in DEVONthink 2.11.3:
Version 2.11.3 updates DEVONthink's support for the popular markup processor MultiMarkdown to version 6 with many syntax and parsing enhancements. It also adds the CriticMarkup syntax. Further, DEVONthink 2.11.3 improves zooming Markdown documents and formatted notes, adds automatic spelling correction to HTML-based documents, and detects WikiLinks based on names and aliases up to 70 times faster.

The update creates new bookmarks defaulting to https: and improves the automatic naming of captured bookmarks. Email archiving is faster and more reliable, the Apple Mail plugin no longer requires full disk access on macOS Mojave, and email messages look better in their alternative representation, especially with narrow or wide windows. It's now also possible to choose custom encodings for email.

On the sync side, DEVONthink 2.11.3 improves the reliability of Bonjour connections, handling of pending items, and the overall sync performance. Indexed files with the same modification date are no longer unnecessarily downloaded while importing and merging databases.

Finally, other improvements in DEVONthink 2.11.3 include more reliable detection of column headers in imported CSV and TSV files, better truncating very long document names, and an improved German localization. A new menu command gives customers quick access to their customer account login on the recently relaunched DEVONtechnologies website.
