Nashville, Tennessee - 30 South is proud to announce the launch Swift Budget for iPhone today. Swift Budget is a new budgeting app for iPhone launching today. It harnesses the power of MX Technologies to provide connections to 16,000 financial institutions in the US and Canada, and it uses this data to help users keep track of their finances and save money.

Swift Budget is a digital envelope system that syncs to your checking account and/or credit cards and allows you to track your spending. Tracking expenses is the key to taking control of your finances, getting out of debt, and building wealth.

Swift Budget allows users to have their eyes on each of their transactions, but it makes an automated guess at the correct envelope, so they can quickly confirm each expense. If people would like to choose a different envelope, or if they need to split it between multiple envelopes, they can do that easily, too, all while keeping 100% control of their money and their budgets.

Founder and CEO Derek Clark said, "I made Swift Budget because it's the budgeting app I needed for my family, and my hope is that it will help others with their finances too." He continued, "I was tired of budgeting apps guessing wrong on where my expenses should go and automatically putting them there. It's more work to go through and find the mistakes than it is to get them right the first time."
