New York, NY - Spryfit Inc, a fitness startup, today announces the launch of its new app called Vingo for iOS. By using Apple's built-in step calculator, Vingo tracks users' daily steps and let them use the step count to get a chance to win a cash prize.

Among the many other apps that pay users money, what makes Vingo special is users can determine their betting number by their daily step count. Checking on one's step count means a lot in terms of judging one's day either they spent worthily or not. At Vingo, the number becomes more meaningful.

Vingo is simple to use: BET on your step count between 9:30 PM - 9:55 PM ET and WATCH Vingo Live at 10 PM ET where the winning number will be released. If a user's betting number matches the winning number, the user becomes a winner. If there's no winner, the prize will move on to the next day and get bigger. If there are multiple winners, the prize will be distributed evenly. Cash prize can be redeemed through PayPal. It means users can earn hard cash with zero investing.

Inspired by the popular live streaming app HQ trivia, Vingo streams live drawing show that runs only at the scheduled time at 10 PM every day. Also, during the live show, Vingo provides in-app live chatting tool to increase user interaction. When the app gets more users, the company is expecting to collaborate with consumer brands in the near future.

"We wanted to let people find a little joy in their everyday life," said Victor, founder and CEO.

"We love working with fitness data and wanted to provide people with a fun and unique way of getting rewards", he said.

Vingo app should be installed on the iPhone with iOS 11.0 or later versions and on the Android device with 4.4 or later versions. It can be downloaded in the U.S. store only. For more information about Vingo or to schedule an interview, please email us.
