

TokoToko is a premium AR game that brings your drawings to life

Published on 10/03/19

Independent developer, Kalank today announces TokoToko, the first episode of its augmented reality mobile title for iOS devices. Watch drawings leap off the page and onto phone screens with the first episode of this adorable augmented reality game. TokoToko is delivered in three episodic parts. Draw onto paper and watch your drawings appear as interactive objects on the screen for the characters of the game to use in order to solve puzzles.

Angoulme, France - Independent developer Kalank today launched the first episode of its augmented reality mobile title, TokoToko, for $2.99/GBP2.99/Euro3.49 on iOS devices (parts two and three to be released in the future as FREE updates). TokoToko combines the power of AR and imagination, with players drawing items in the real world on paper then seeing them spring to life on screen. Transporting players to an island, they must solve puzzles using their drawings to help the heartwarming TokoToko creatures on their journey.

TokoToko's cute narrative adventure is perfect for adults and children alike. Adding a modern technological twist to drawing, players watch in amazement as their real-life sketches come to life in order to complete tasks. Whether sketching a trapdoor to create an entrance for a character to emerge from or breathing life into a sailing boat, the results are delightful. This is made possible through the power of augmented reality and a little bit of magic from the game's namesakes - the Tokotokos.

TokoToko has a vibrant cast of art-loving Tokotoko creatures - including Hako the super-cute Cat, Azuko the Lion and Peko the Fish - in a charming tale that inspires creativity. Every moment is presented in the game's beautiful art style that draws inspiration from clay and stop-motion animation. The player's creations will help the Tokotoko overcome barriers, both physical and internal, to achieve all of their dreams. Each episode will further explore the story of Hako and her friends and bring new features to the TokoToko experience.

"As creative people ourselves, we imagined Tokotoko as a way to invite players and non-players in expressing themselves the way they want, with the joyous help of the love-sharing Tokotokos." - Kalank Team
