The newest version of VIDEORECOVERY, version 5.1.9.7, includes updates for new cameras, new file types and some minor bug fixes.

Clearwater, FL - LC Technology International Inc., one of the most well-known providers of data recovery products and utilities, has released a new variant of one of their award-winning utilities, VIDEORECOVERY 2019 for macOS. The newest version of VIDEORECOVERY, version 5.1.9.7, includes updates for new cameras, new file types and some minor bug fixes.

The features to this new utility are designed to support newer high-end video formats used in action cameras and devices like GoPro and DJI drones, as well as movie production cameras like ARRI, RED, Blackmagic and Magic Lantern.

VIDEORECOVERY uses the same easy-to-use interface as LC Technology's PHOTORECOVERY(R) program, with a focus on video files. The utility allows for recovery from digital cameras, memory cards, flash drives, external storage, USB sticks and other storage devices.

Movie formats that are currently supported in VIDEORECOVERY 2019 include:

- * 3GPP - 3rd Generation Mobile System
- * 3GPP2 - 3rd Generation Mobile System
- * AVI - Microsoft Video for Window movie
- * ASF - Windows Advanced System Format
- * M2TS/MTS - ACVHD HD Video
- * MOV - QuickTime Movie
- * MOD - MOD Video
- * M4V - M4V Video
- * MLV - Magic Lantern Video
- * MP3 - MPEG Audio Layer 3 (AC3)
- * MP4 - MPEG Advanced Audio Coding
- * MPG, MPEG - Video Audio
- * MXF - Material eXchange Format
- * R3D - Redcode/RED camera format
- * RM - RealAudio video file
- * WMV - Windows Media Video

Trial versions are available online, so users have the ability to try the product before they buy. End user pricing begins at $59.95, with the professional version priced at $249.95.

The professional version includes a specialized utility, Digital Media Doctor, for maintaining and testing memory devices to ensure they are functioning properly. The software is available in 22 different languages for both Windows and Mac OSX systems. Check out VIDEORECOVERY 2019 on LC Technology's website to purchase.
