BatchOutput PDF allows users to print Adobe PDF documents automatically from watched hot folders tailored for different output workflows. The app helps users eliminate countless repetitive tasks of opening files and adjusting print settings manually. The deal lets users save $12.50 on each copy of the software.

Toronto (ON), Canada - Zevrix Solutions announces that BatchOutput PDF, the company's PDF print automation solution for Mac, is available on software discount site BitsDuJour until June 12 only. BatchOutput PDF allows users to print multiple PDF files from watched hot folders saving the time and effort of opening and printing each document manually. This special offer allows users to save $12.50 on each copy of the software.

BatchOutput PDF completely automates PDF printing workflow by processing files from watched hot folders. Users can define print presets for various output settings and assign a hot folder to each preset. For example, they can create hot folders for color and black-and-white printers, specific paper sizes, duplex modes, various color profiles and so on.

"This is one of those Apps that you never knew you needed until you spend a day using it," says Glen Saville of Glen Saville Design firm in Hornchurch, UK. "If you handle a large number of PDFs daily this will save you time, without a doubt."

BatchOutput PDF offers reliable, robust and affordable solution for users of any trade, whether it's print, publishing, graphic design, education or financial sector:

- * Batch print PDFs from watched hot folders
- * Create hot folders for various print jobs
- * Work with other programs while BatchOutput PDF prints in the background
- * Detailed output history
- * Specify password for encrypted PDFs
- * Save time and hassle of printing each PDF manually

In addition to the single-user version of the program, Zevrix also offers BatchOutput PDF Server that allows to serve multiple users on a network.
