New Udupi, India - Global Delight - Makers and Publishers of Mac, iPhone(TM) and iPod(R) touch products - today released an update to its Mac screen-capturing tool, Voila. This popular productivity and creativity enhancement tool is now fully compatible with Snow Leopard, leveraging the performance of the new operating system besides working on Leopard OS X. This release also incorporates user requested features such as Copy-Paste, Spotlight and more, along with polishing of some of the existing features.

Voila version 2.5 now supports copy-paste of images and annotations from the application to various other documents and applications. Voila also supports copying the last captured image to the clipboard, thus enabling users to easily and quickly paste the captured image onto their documents with a paste command.

Voila has the Spotlight feature added, which enables users to draw attention to a specific area of the image. The feature is powerful with the flexibility of applying multiple spotlights of various shapes, all on the same image. The addition of simple Outline border was a frequently called for feature by designers, trainers and more. This feature applies a simple border to the image, thus giving it a distinct and neat look. The border intensity can be adjusted as per the requirements.

Voila has a new capture mechanism that allows capturing windows in their active state using flexible keyboard shortcuts. This would be of great assistance in getting screenshots of windows exactly as they would appear on the Mac desktop. In addition, color profile of the captured image would be the same as system profile, giving a perfect look to the image. The new version also fixes various bugs and issues in the previous version reported by the users.
