

George Burgess releases GeoRev 1.0 - iPhone App for Geography Revision

Published on 12/01/09

UK based George Burgess has released GeoRev 1.0, a Geography GCSE revision application for the iPhone and iPod Touch. GeoRev, is designed to help students revise for their Geography GCSE exam and consists of 600 multiple-choice questions. These questions are separated into 15 topic areas with both foundation and higher tier options. The topic areas aim to incorporate the majority of material required by major exam boards.

London, United Kingdom - George Burgess, an A-level pupil at St Paul's School, London has released a Geography GCSE revision application for the iPhone and iPod Touch. On 24th November, 2009 the application was made available for sale on Apple's iTunes application store.

The app, GeoRev, is designed to help students revise for their Geography GCSE exam and consists of 600 multiple-choice questions. These questions are separated into 15 topic areas with both foundation and higher tier options. The topic areas aim to incorporate the majority of material required by major exam boards.

The app can also be used by users who want to test their general Geographical knowledge, or those taking exams in other countries. GeoRev is the first of many revision apps Burgess will produce as part of his business EducationApps. The business aims to produce high quality education applications for the iPhone and iPod touch which help pupils to learn and revise for exams.

Burgess outsourced the development of the application. The 600 questions were written by Will Williams, Head of Geography at St Paul's, and Burgess himself.
