West Orange, New Jersey - Game developer Gallen Technologies, LLC announced today its iPhone game SPHERE RAIDER(TM) has been resoundingly received. SPHERE RAIDER(TM) brings exhilarating game play for all ages. Pocket Gamer's Jon Jordan, says "SPHERE RAIDER(TM), puts a "twist" on tilt based games. With its seven month product development, Gallen Technologies was able to put a twist on the use of the accelerometer feature of the iPhone. The result is that it has more action feelings then other tilt based games on the market.

It's not just a matter of maneuvering balls through a track, the player also controls the disk in the center of the screen. The disk varies in form between the ten levels of the game. At the edges of the screen small colorful balls appear and move through the disk. The player has to rotate the screen, and catch the balls in the various channels in each disk to score points.

SPHERE RAIDER(TM) has three control methods: accelerometer, directly spinning the disk with your finger, and using a touch button method where you tap either the minus - or plus + button to rotate anti and clockwise respectively. The game is designed to hold a universal appeal and is enjoyed by all ages. It has amazing graphics with brilliant colors. Each level is designed differently with electrifying graphics to challenge the player. The vibrant cool graphics keep the player's mind engaged in the game.
