UK based EuroSmartz today announced ClipPrinter 1.1.1, its latest printing application for iPhone and iPod Touch devices. ClipPrinter enables users to easily copy, print, transfer or save and categorize copied items from other iPhone or iPod Touch apps, or to an Apple Mac or Windows PC. EuroSmartz was the first company to bring the functionality of printing photos, contacts, email and more to the iPhone when it released Print n Share in February 2008.

London, UK - EuroSmartz, the Apple(R) iPhone(R) application development company, today announced that its latest printing application, ClipPrinter is now available worldwide on the Apple iTunes Application Store. EuroSmartz was the first company to bring the functionality of printing photos, contacts, email and more to the iPhone when it released Print n Share in February 2008. Now with the release of ClipPrinter, EuroSmartz has again achieved another major milestone by enabling users to use the "Copy" function available on the iPhone or iPod touch and then either print, save or transfer the copied item to another users device or to an Apple Mac or Windows PC.

Ian Schenkel, product development director at EuroSmartz comments, "With our Print n Share application we introduced functionality to the iPhone and iPod Touch that's never been seen before, and we are continuing that level of innovation with this new application, ClipPrinter. ClipPrinter has already surpassed early sales estimates and shows that iPhone & iPod touch users have had the need to copy and transfer or print - but have not the application to do so"
